MARKET COMMENTARY

The US Federal Reserve (Fed) delivered another interest rate cut in December but surprised markets by reducing the number of cuts it expects to make in 2025. The hawkish messaging from the Fed resulted in bond yields rising and a weaker month for financial markets. Australian shares rounded off a strong year of double-digit gains with a softer finish, weighed down by a materials sector struggling off the back of Chinese demand concerns, and profit-taking in the financials. The S&P/ASX 200 Index slipped -3.2% for the month. Smaller companies performed similarly to their larger counterparts, with the S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries Index dropping -3.1%.

International shares ended an impressive year with a mixed December. Ongoing weakness in the Australian dollar — due to a struggling Chinese economy, threats of US trade tariffs, and a sluggish local economy — boosted unhedged exposure but was a drag for hedged exposure. The MSCI All Country World Index climbed +2.7%, while the equivalent hedged index declined -1.7%. Regionally, Asian markets moved higher in December, while a reinvigorated technology sector was not enough to lift the broader US market into positive territory. Global small companies, as represented by the MSCI World ex Australia Small Cap Net Return AUD Index, slipped -1.0% in December.

Property and infrastructure assets struggled in December as rising bond yields weighed on the interest rate-sensitive sectors. The FTSE Global Core Infrastructure 50/50 (Hedged) Index fell -5.1%, while the property-focused FTSE EPRA Nareit Developed Index (Hedged) dropped -6.4%.

Fixed interest markets closed the year cautiously, with expectations of a slower pace of rate cuts triggering a sell-off in major government bond markets. Bond yields moved higher, particularly in the US, and were a headwind for global bond returns. The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Hedged Index was -0.9% lower in December. The local Bloomberg AusBond Composite 0+ Yr Index was more resilient, ticking up +0.5% for the month. Credit spreads were relatively stable over the month. Australian credit (corporate bonds) outperformed global credit, with the Bloomberg AusBond Credit 0+ Yr Index climbing +0.7%. Global investment-grade credit, as tracked by the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Credit Total Return Index Hedged AUD, slipped -1.3%. With higher total yields, global high-yield credit fared better, retreating -0.3% in December.

Performance Disclaimer: Performance numbers are provided by BT where available. Where this data is not available (usually between when the portfolio is first established and when the first investment occurs), Morningstar is used to generate performance numbers. We do not warrant the accuracy of this data. The performance numbers represent estimates for Model Portfolio performance. The Model Portfolio is a notional portfolio, and these returns will differ from the returns experienced by individual clients. Performance numbers are net of fees and rebates and are before tax (where Morningstar data is used, these numbers do not include transaction costs). Please refer to the PDS for the indices that comprise the Model Portfolio's benchmark. Morningstar Peer Group information is a simple average of all the funds within a particular Morningstar Category. As the percentage numbers in this document are rounded to the nearest 0.1%, the sum of individual numbers may not always add up to 100%.

Composite Disclaimer: The performance numbers outlined in the Evidentia Composite Performance section are for the Evidentia Composite Portfolios. Composite portfolio performance does not represent actual portfolio performance, but instead represents the equally weighted average performance of a group of actual portfolios managed by Evidentia Group on behalf of its clients, according to similar investment objectives or risk profiles. Composite portfolio performance provides an effective method for measuring a portfolio manager's past performance when the actual performance history for a new portfolio, managed by the same portfolio manager with a similar investment objective or risk profile, is limited or unavailable. Although the Evidentia Composite Portfolios provide a useful tool for presenting past performance in a fair and accurate manner, it is important to understand past performance does not guarantee future performance or protect against investment risks. Investors should carefully review past performance information and other relevant information before making investment decisions.
